

HUMAN RIGHTS

*To deny people
their human rights
is to challenge their very humanity.*

- Nelson Mandela

What are human rights?

Human rights are fundamental rights and freedoms that belong to every person, regardless of nationality, gender, ethnicity, religion, language, or any other distinction.

Human rights are the foundation of every democratic community and form the basis for building a peaceful and just society.

LGBTIQ+ Rights: Equality for All

LGBTQI+ rights are not a separate entity but an integral part of human rights.

Everyone, regardless of sexual orientation or gender identity, is entitled to life, liberty, and security.

Upholding LGBTQI+ rights is not just about a specific group but about our society's broader advancement of human rights.

“Every human being is born free and equal in dignity and rights. Our responsibility is to treat one another with reason and conscience in a spirit of brotherhood.”
